

- 1.) Currently, I am pursuing a Marketing Major with a Music Recording Technology Minor. With this I would like to work with record labels in the music industry. I have always loved music and I would love to market performers to the public. As for driving factors, I actually have a couple things that drive me to graduate from Bowling Green State University. The main one is the fact that I have made it a goal of mine. I do not want to be the kind of person that gives up on anything. If I give up on college, then I give up on myself and I cannot accept that of myself. Another driver for me is being able to set up my future. College is giving me the education that can get me the career that can provide for my future family. Nothing is happening as of yet, but once the time comes, I want to be able to have the answers for any problem that would come my way.

- 2.) My step-father was in the Army. However, he has been around since I was at least two years old, so he is essentially my dad. That fact alone has impacted me immensely. Him stepping up and taking care of my mom and I showed me that taking responsibility is more than the right thing to do. He showed me that taking care of others is the highest form of service. I am now the kind of person that helps others whenever possible and I never put myself first. My dad has shown me how to be caring and concerned for others, no matter what. Another thing I have learned from him is how important respect is. Respect for other's walks of life, respect for authority and most importantly, respect for yourself. If you cannot accept and respect who you are, then there is no way you will be able to respect others. My dad was able to show me all this and more and I could never show how much I truly appreciate all of this to him.
