The Josh Project is a charitable organization that has been serving the area for more than five years. Wanda and Tankeeya turned this tragic accident into something great. They believe that swimming is an important life skill. They also believe that the application of water safety is essential to saving lives. Wanda, Tankeeya and Tankeeya’s children were the first students of The Josh Project.

Have you ever thought about what you would do if you were out to dinner, at the gym, or out on the street walking back to your office when you see someone fall down and grab their chest? Would you go over and try and help, or would you just keep on walking?

Every morning I head to the gym before going to the office. I was in the locker room when I saw a man sitting there on the bench, half bent over, and breathing pretty heavy. This wasn’t your typical heavy breathing after a good run or work out, this was different.

He said he was having a heart attack. I didn’t know what to do other than to call 911. Thankfully, a paramedic happened to be standing next to him. When I was out on the street and saw something happen, would you know what to do?

We asked Dr. Jack Siebenaler of Oregon Urgent Care what is the best thing to do if you see someone having a heart attack. Here is what he had to say:

First… have someone call 911. Do not leave the person alone. Have another person call 911. The operator may ask for symptoms of the patient, i.e. pulse, sweating, alertness, breathing hard/shallow.

Keep the person comfortable and lie them down on the floor. It’s safe and steady for the emergency team to care for a patient.

Administer CPR, if there is someone available that is properly trained.

Give the person a baby aspirin, if he/she is alert enough to chew it and not choke.

During a heart attack, symptoms typically last 30 minutes or longer and are not relieved by rest or oral medications. Initial symptoms may start as a mild discomfort that progresses to significant pain. If you think you are having a heart attack, DO NOT DELAY. Call for emergency help (dial 911).

Immediate treatment of a heart attack is very important to the patient, (i.e. pulse, sweating, alertness, breathing hard/shallow).

Discomfort, pressure, heaviness, or pain in the chest, arm, or below the brenehmer.

Discomfort radiating to the back, jaw, throat, or arm.

Fullness, indigestion, or choking feeling (may feel like heartburn).

Sweating, nausea, vomiting, or dizziness.

Extreme weakness, anxiety, or shortness of breath.

Rapid or irregular heartbeats.

The following information was provided by WebMD. Symptoms of a heart attack can include:

HEAD-ON COLLISION BLAMED ON CLAIRE
Our client was running onto Main Street in Toledo, when another driver drove through the red light causing her to hit our client head on. The driver who hit our client said the green light of the other vehicle caused her to not see the light turn red. He was then treated for injuries to his neck, back and shoulder. Surgery was received to fix our clients shoulder, and he is now going through intense physical therapy. Our client may still need another surgery.

Wanda was also recognized as a CNN Hero this past month. CNN argues that “According to USA Swimming, 70% of African-American children cannot swim, compared with nearly 60% for Hispanic children and 42% for white children. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, African-American children between the ages of 5 and 14 are three times more likely to drown than white children in the same age range.”
