Bikes for Kids rides into town

It's that time of year again, when deserving kids around northwest Ohio will be rewarded with a brand new bicycle from Wersell's Bike Shop, compliments of Charles E. Boyk Law Offices.

The attorneys in our office started Bikes for Kids last summer, as a way to promote bicycle safety and recognize kids in the community who have made a difference in the life of someone else.

We are giving away another 13 bikes, one for each week this summer, starting the first week of June. "The goal of Bikes for Kids is to give back to the community," Attorney Chuck Boyk said. "We really try to focus on public service here at the firm, and we choose kids who have done something outstanding for their family or the community."

NBC 24 has partnered with our office and Wersell's to promote Bikes for Kids, and will be featuring the program in television commercials and on their website.

Starting in May, parents, grandparents, teachers, and family members are encouraged to enter Bikes for Kids by telling us in 150 words or less why their child deserves a bike, and how they have made a difference.

Visit NBC 24's website at toledoonthemove.com or our website, ohiochildaccidentbook.com next month for more information on rules and how to enter!

Do you know what to do after a motorcycle accident?

Anyone who has ever ridden a motorcycle knows the exhilaration and freedom that comes from cruising down a wide-open country road on a warm, sunny day. And, anyone who has ever ridden a motorcycle knows the uneasy feeling that comes from being boxed in on a busy highway with a semi-truck on either side of you.

Motorcyclists are vulnerable out on the road and, unfortunately, accidents do happen. After an accident, the injured rider needs solid, practical advice about how to deal with insurance companies, medical providers, and the courts.

Those who haven't been involved in a serious motorcycle or car accident often expect that an insurance company will take care of their bills and compensate them for the pain and suffering they've endured. But for many the nightmare is just beginning. The pain caused by the wreck becomes almost secondary to the unfair treatment the victim receives from insurance companies that have one objective – closing

Steve Reamey

Steve Reamey

We've all heard the saying, "What goes around, comes around," but in Steve Reamey's case, what came around was pretty big - a job offer.

As a guest DJ specializing in charities with 92.5 KISS FM, Steve Reamey dedicates his life to helping others. He has helped countless individuals through his help with programs such as the Arts Commission of Greater Toledo, AIDS Resource Center Ohio, Chicks for Charity, Love for Lupe, and Big Brothers Big Sisters, and continues to look out for people in need in northwest Ohio.

After working with our firm during the Love for Lupe project, Attorney Chuck Boyk and office manager Leslie Rombkowski were so impressed with his communication skills and ease at building relationships, that they hired Steve to join the marketing team.

"One of things I absolutely love about working at Charles Boyk Law Offices is working with people," Steve said. "I feel right at home, since this is what I do. I try to help people become more successful through the relationships they build, whether it's a business owner or someone in need."

Focusing on business acquisition, Steve goes out into the community to build relationships with other businesses and leaders, using our platform of public service.

Steve graduated from the University of Toledo with a Bachelor's degree in Communications before working at Sunrise Gymnastics Academy, where he has been the Program Director for the past 19 years.

Outgoing and personable, Steve makes friends with virtually everyone he talks to.

"Steve is the type of person who can get along with anyone, regardless of their age," Attorney Chuck Boyk said. "In his first week alone, he has helped us build great relationships with businesses who share the same values that we do."

Using our motto, "How can we serve you?," Steve tracks down business owners who are looking for out-of-the-box ways to co-market with our firm. We do everything from trading newsletter articles and website links, to providing joint seminars on subjects like safety or insurance.

If you are a business owner who would like to co-market with our office, contact Steve or Anneke at 419.241.1395 or sreamey@charlesboyk-law.com or akurt@charlesboyk-law.com for a meeting.

the file for as little money as possible without fair compensation for the injured.

You're at a natural disadvantage when you deal with insurance adjusters who handle claims for a living. They do it every day and all day. It's the way they feed their families and pay for their homes. In short, they're professionals and you're not. It has nothing to do with how smart or successful you are in other areas of your life.

Here are the Top 6 Steps to Take After a Motorcycle Accident in order to ensure fair compensation:

1. Seek treatment immediately. Never wait to go the emergency room or doctor. You could be injured and not know it.

2. Don't rush to settle your claim. A few thousand dollars may sound tempting, but the settlement might not cover medical treatment needed later.

3. Don't provide a statement to the insurance adjuster or sign any medical authorizations. Doing so would give the insurance company access to information that has nothing to do with the accident you were involved in, which the insurance company might use against you.

4. Document everything. Make sure to keep copies of all medical bills and records, police reports, verification of time off work, and lost pay.

5. Don't exaggerate your injuries.

Nothing kills your claim faster than being caught in a lie.

6. Talk to an attorney before you sign anything or accept a settlement. Insurance adjusters settle claims for a living. You need a professional on your side to defend your rights.

Overcoming adversity: Couple injured while trying to help others

When Everett and Wanda Spangler decided to participate in a charity motorcycle ride to help another family, they never thought that they would end up needing help of a different kind themselves.

On June 7, 2009, they were riding back from the Travelers' Club on Dorr St. for the Biker's Against Child Abuse motorcycle ride to honor 3-year-old Kaycie Bork, who lost her life at the hands of her mother's boyfriend.

A truck pulled out in front of the couple, who were riding together on Everett's motorcycle at 2:30 on a Sunday afternoon, less than a half mile from their home. When they hit the truck, Wanda flew up over her husband and over the hood of the truck, literally knocking the boots and the socks off of her feet. Everett hit the truck, cracking his pelvis.

But to reflect the type of kind, generous people the Spangler's are, the most vivid memory they had of the accident was of the people who helped them.

"We had Good Samaritans stop and help us from every direction," Wanda said. "There were at least eight to ten people there, holding towels against Everett's head, or helping me to relax until the ambulance arrived."

Besides the cracked pelvis, Everett had to have 17 staples in his head. Wanda had six broken toes, and needed surgery on her right knee.

They didn't think that they needed an attorney until a colleague of Everett's mentioned that he should go see Attorney Chuck Boyk.

"I had no idea the type of compensation I was entitled to," Everett said. "Chuck even came out to see us at the house - not many attorneys would do that. Chuck and his staff explained everything to us so we understood exactly what was going on at all times."

Hiring a lawyer helped the Spangler's obtain enough money to cover their totaled bike and over $70,000 of current and future medical bills, after the insurance company originally offered to cover only the bike and the ER bills.
